BLACK SILK

WARP FABRICS!

We have received our summer stock of B. Priestley & Co.'s which embraces all of last year's favorites, and other equally desirable weaves recently introduced.

This maker acknowledges no peer, and few, if any, equals. The highest degree of perfection in weave, evenness, finish, uniformity, and good taste is plainly manifest in these fabrics. One way, the finest selected silk; the other, the finest selected Australian wool. The sombreness and softness of the wool is exquisitely relieved by the lustre and dressiness of the silk, the result being the very acme of textile refinement, and ladies of good taste adopt them instinctively.

GEORGE

GENERAL BOULANGER.

He is Greeted With Cheers by the Populace of France.

PARIS, April 20.—The chamber of deputies having re-convened yesterday, on the demand of Premier Floquet, the chamber, by a vote of 377 to 177, adopted an order of the day, expressing confidence in the government, and the conviction that it will secure by its energy respect for republican institutions, the triumph of its policy of progress and reform, and the liberty desired by the country.

General Boulanger, who arrived in an open carriage, was cheered by the immense crowd that had assembled outside of the parliamentary building.

The chamber adjourned until Saturday. General Boulanger returned to the Hotel Du Louvre in his carriage, and was greeted with acclaims by the people. Perfect order was maintained.

The Oldest Man in the World.

SANTA CRUZ, April 20.—Col. Edward Sumner, of San Francisco, is visiting his daughter, Mrs. Ada E. Taylor, on Locust street. Col. Sumner is the oldest Free Mason known to be living in the world. He has been a Mason for seventy-one years. He was born in 1796. A remarkable fact is that he can read without the aid of glasses.

In the war of 1812 he was a member of a transportation company in New York, which was engaged in transporting munitions and troops. He came to California in 1850, but returned to Wisconsin a few years after. He served in the Wisconsin legislature during 1859-60. In 1863 he once more came to California, where he has since remained. Colonel Sumner is a descendant of the Sumners who came to America in the Mayflower.

Dunham's Death Warrant.

TRENTON, April 20.—Governor Green has signed the death warrant of George McClellan Dunham, who was convicted of murdering his mother-in-law at Woodbury. Dunham is now under a reprieve until the 26th of April, when the execution will take place. The governor's messenger will deliver the death warrant to the sheriff of Gloucester county.

GEO. H. PENDLETON.

Our Minister to Germany Suddenly Stricken With Apoplexy at Berlin This Morning.

BERLIN, April 20.—Mr. Pendleton, the American minister, while traveling to Frankfort, was stricken with apoplexy. He was taken to the hospital at Wiesbaden, where he now lies.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 20.—No intelligence concerning the illness of United States Minister Geo. H. Pendleton, referred to in the dispatch from Berlin to-day, has been received by his brother, Mr. Elliott H. Pendleton, of this city. Minister Pendleton has only one daughter in Berlin with him, and it is probable his journey was taken alone.

Minister Pendleton's son, Francis K. Pendleton, of this city, has received a cable dispatch from Wiesbaden, informing him that while his father sustained a slight apoplelic stroke, his condition is not at any time considered dangerous, nor is any danger feared now.

This morning he was again reassured by cable dispatches both from Wiesbaden and Berlin. The secretary of legation at Berlin cables: "Continued improvement; no danger now feared. Your father telegraphed me himself today."

WASHINGTON, April 20.—A cable dispatch was received at the state department from Berlin, saying that Mr. Pendleton, feeling unwell, left Berlin last Monday for Wiesbade, and on Wednesday evening suffered what he said was a slight stroke of paralysis. He had recovered yesterday sufficiently, however, to send instructions to the legation at Berlin.

NEAL DOW NOT FOR THE DECISION.

Just a Little Liquor Found is Insufficient to Secure a Conviction.

PORTLAND, Me., April 20.—A few days ago Judge Walton, of the supreme court, in a liquor case at Bath instructed the state constable that the finding of a "small quantity" of liquor when search was made under the seizure law was not of itself sufficient to warrant a conviction.

Neal Dow said yesterday that he was satisfied the decision is incorrect. A decision of the supreme court on those terms would practically put an end to the Maine law. The greater number of seizures at low grog shops were in small quantities, and by inference Judge Walton might be supposed to hold that such seizures should not be made. There is nothing in the search and seizure clause implying quantity, and the admission of such limitation would be absurd.

COUNTING THE DEAD

In the Bethel House Fire at St. Louis—Three Bodies Found.

ST. LOUIS, April 10.—A thorough search in the ruins of the Bethel home fire resulted in finding the bodies of three men: John Grant, a colored wharfman; Jackson, a white levee laborer, and Smithey, a white roustabout. In the hospitals the burned and bruised are: George Miller, hands burned; Frank Henken, legs hurt; Alexander Webb, knee hurt; James Smith, badly burned about the body. The total pecuniary loss is $10,000; on building, $5,000.

A further investigation strengthens the impression that the fire was incendiary. The three dead bodies taken from the ruins are not known, it being ascertained that the men mentioned in the previous report are alive.

WM. B. DINSMORE,

The President of the Adams Express Company, is Not Expected to Live.

NEW YORK, April 20.—William B. Dinsmore, president of the Adams Express company, is ill at his home, and is not expected to live more than two or three days at the most. He is seventy-eight years old and known throughout the United States as a veteran in the express business.

Conkling Died a Poor Man.

NEW YORK, April 20.—It is learned that Ex-Senator Conkling died a comparatively poor man. He left a house and lot in Utica valued at $25,000. He owned eight unimproved lots on One Hundred and Thirteenth and One Hundred and Fourteenth streets, near the site of the proposed Protestant cathedral, and unimproved lots in the suburbs of Washington, and some securities.

THE LAST OF EARTH.

The Impressive Funeral Services at New York Over the Remains of Roscoe Conkling.

NEW YORK, April 20.—The funeral services were held this morning in the Trinity chapel over the remains of Roscoe Conkling. The pall-bearers were: Judge Shipman, Mayor Abram S. Hewitt; S. L. M. Barlow, Clarence A. Seward, Manton Marble, Senator John P. Jones, Senator J. Don Cameron, Judge William A. Wallace, Walter S. Church, and H. Bailey. Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix was the officiating clergyman. The services were simple, and no sermon was preached.

After the services the remains were borne to the depot, placed on a special train and will reach Utica at 6:45 p. m.

WASHINGTON.

Proceedings of Congress—The Senate Adjourns Until Monday.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—The house passed the Indian appropriation bill.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—After further debate last evening, which at times was quite exciting, the senate came to a vote on the substitute for the Dakota bill and then on the bill itself. The substitute was defeated, yeas 23, nays 26. The bill passed, yeas 26, nays 23, a strictly party vote. Mr. Platte gave notice that he would at an early day call up the other territorial bill. A bill was reported and placed on calendar for a public building at Akron, O.

Adjourned until Monday.

HOUSE.

The house has postponed further consideration of the tariff bill until Tuesday next, and is considering the Indian appropriation bill.

The house went into a committee of the whole (Mr. Springer, of Illinois, in the chair), for the further consideration of the Indian appropriation bill.

An amendment was adopted appropriating $20,000 for the education of Indian pupils in Alaska. The amendment was adoped striking out the provision for an inspector of Indian schools and providing for a superintendent of Indian schools. Mr. Bayne, of Pennsylvania offered an amendment providing that at Indian training schools where church organizations are assisting in the educational work, the christian bible may be taught in the native language of the Indians, if in the opinion of the persons in charge of the schools it was deemed conducive to the moral welfare of the pupils, and it was adopted.

ONE WIFE IS ENOUGH NOW

For the Saintly Mormons, Because They Can't Safely Evade the Law.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, April 20.—The United States marshal, as receiver in the government suits to confiscate the property of the Mormon church, continues to search for and claim property which, it is alleged, the church has held and disposed of to individuals.

While testifying before the examiner in these suits, Angus McCannon, president of the Salt Lake state of Zion, answered that he did not now sign any recommendations to the temple for plural marriages, and that over a year ago, the president of the church notified him he would not countersign any more such recommendations; therefore such marriages had been discontinued. The new council contains four prominent gentiles among its members.

Nominations at Wabash.

WABASH, Ind., April 20.—The democrats of Wabash county met in convention yesterday and elected John B. Latchem chairman of the country central committee. Captain William R. Myers was indorsed for governor and the delegates instructed to vote for him first and last.

Last night, at the city democratic convention, Enos Powell was nominated for mayor; E. L. Bechtol, treasurer; Leander Bussard, clerk; Charles Wayne, marshal. Chris Hipp, Valentine Smith, Banner McCowan and Nicholas Hubbard were nominated for councilmen.

The Weather.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Indiana: Warmer, fair weather.

$10,000 OIL FIRE!

The Standard Oil Tanks, Their Offices and Store Houses Go Up in Smoke.

This afternoon, at 3 o'clock, a fire started, possibly from a locomotive spark, in the Standard oil yards, east of the city on the line of the Wabash road. Like a flash the whole yard was ablaze, for everything out there is saturated with oil. A mountain like heap of barrels gave substance to the fire and heated the huge tanks to a bursting point.

At 3:30 the east tank exploded and the boiler was hurled a distance of 200 feet across the railroad track and over the heads of hundreds of bystanders, who made miraculous escapes.

This poured out the contents of the tank and burning oil ran through the yard in a perfect flood, adding fresh fuel to the flames.

When THE SENTINEL reporter left the scene at 3:40, the fire was raging with indications that every tank would explode, as well as the steam boiler used to propel the pump utilized in filling the barrels and tanks.

Great crowds hovered about the oil yards braving death, as it were, and invading dangerous territory as people do on occasions of this sort.

The mayor ordered the patrol wagon out with a posse of police to do guard duty and spare human lives that are threatened by the explosions.

The firemen are powerless to stay the flames and can only prevent them from spreading.

The company carried about $10,000 worth of oil and it with their property, is a total loss.

CHARGED WITH BIGAMY.

John S. Delano, of La Harpe, Ill., Locked Up—A Pension Officer Makes the Arrest.

CARTHAGE, Ill., April 20.—John S. Delano, of La Harpe, was placed in jail here yesterday in default of $1,000 bonds for alleged bigamy. It is said Delano has been married eight times, and that several of his wives are yet living. He has been drawing a Mexican war pension, and one of his wives living at Creston, Ia., who thought him to be dead, was drawing the same pension. Delano was arrested by a pension officer.

A MURDERER HUNG.

LEBANON, Tenn., April 20.—N. B. Lester, the murderer of Lieut. J. L. Lane, was hanged here to-day. He made a disconnected speech, explaining why he had committed the crime, and said Lane had destroyed his happiness and his family. Only thirty people witnessed the execution, six of whom were invited by Lester.

A FATAL PASTORAL CALL.

SARDIS, Miss., April 20.—Edward Cossar, a colored man of considerable wealth, returned to his home unexpectedly and found the Rev. Sidney Hibbler, pastor of the Methodist church and principal of the school, at his home. Not being satisfied with the explanation offered, Cossar shot Hibbler in the head, killing him instantly.

CLEVELAND BREWERS

It is Probable the Brewers of Cleveland Will Go Out on a Strike Saturday.

CLEVELAND, O., April 20.—It is probable the brewers will strike here next Saturday. A committee of the Brewers' union yesterday called on the owners of all the breweries with a yearly contract. Without a single exception they refused to sign it. The men threaten to strike and it is probable they will go out Saturday, though they may defer action until May 1, when the contracts expire.

CINCINNATI, O., April 20.—The strike of brewers is not making headway. A large number of skilled workmen have already been imported and none of the breweries have been compelled to close. Some have all the men they need and the boss brewers say that they will not re-employ the strikers. One brewery, Herancourts, has not yet joined the others, but it is said it will unite as soon as its president returns. About 700 men have stopped work.

E. A. K. HACKETT, Editor and Proprietor.

FRIDAY, APRIL 20, 1888.

THE city election will occur Tuesday, May 1.

THE Gazette gets cold comfort out of the Auburn convention.

THE democratic nominees for councilmen should be our very best citizens. Nothing succeeds like success.

THE gas company ought to keep pace with the times and place its illuminating gas within the reach of all people.

HON. TOM BROWNE was renominated by the republicans of the Sixth congressional district, yesterday, at Rushville.

WITH Sherman and Harrison as presidential candidates the weather never will get warm. They are entirely too chilly.

THE democrats can find abundant reason for reducing war taxes in the republican platforms and the speeches of its leaders.

WHY not hold the Twelfth district congressional convention in Fort Wayne? It has been a great while since we had that honor.

EVERY institution in Fort Wayne moves forward but the gas company. It probably wants to assist the electric light into general use.

THE courts may refuse to decree the people cheap water, but the ballots of the May election will be deposited with no uncertain sentiment.

CHEAP water is a boon companion to fresh air and free sun-light. It ought to be within the reach of all the people at the least possible cost.

THE democratic conventions held in Indiana so far have given President Cleveland's administration and tariff sentiments a ringing indorsement.

THE democratic committee of the Eleventh congressional district met at Decatur yesterday and named Huntington and June 28 as the time and place for holding the convention. The judicial convention of the district will occur at Warren, May 5.

THE Kendallville News and Postmaster John Smith, of that village, are at war with each other. This year ought to find the democrats in better humor, but both sides up there are at fault. By just conceding this point a reconciliation is possible and certainly profitable.

THE Indianapolis News publishes Congressman Kelley's speech on the tariff reduction bill and referring to his plea for high protective taxes adds: "In all truth and soberness, the man who talks like that is either a knave or a fool." The News, too, is a reliable republican organ.

AT the republican district conventions in the state, yesterday, all the delegates were instructed for Senator Harrison, insuring him a solid delegation to the Chicago convention. Mr. Harrison's nomination would make Mr. Cleveland's re-election practically unanimous, but it is too good a thing to hope for.

THE Twelfth district republican convention at Auburn, yesterday, elected James S. Drake, of Lagrange, and W. H. Knisely, of Whitley, both Harrison men, as delegates to the Chicago convention. The assembly indorsed Senator Harrison for president and Colonel Robertson for governor, in spite of all opposition. The defeat of Mr. Will Wilson, of this city, for national delegate, was very unkind, and an ungrateful act from which the party cannot recover soon.

THE Kokomo Dispatch, edited by Hon. J. O. Henderson, pays Mr. Dougherty this handsome compliment: "The Hon. Hugh Dougherty, of Bluffton, candidate for state auditor, subject to the democratic state convention, spent an hour between trains in this city Monday. A whiter man, a better democrat, or a truer gentleman does not live in Indiana. If he should be nominated for auditor, and it now looks that way, the party will have honored itself as well as have recognized and rewarded one of its wisest and most valuable leaders. Hugh Dougherty is every inch a man."

GOVERNOR ISAAC P. GRAY'S administration has been royally indorsed by the democratic conventions held in the state so far and the expressions of favor to his candidacy for the vice-presidency are no less enthusiastic and general. Mr. Gray's name will be presented to the national convention with all the honors accorded any of Indiana's leaders and this fact cannot fail to impress itself on the democracy of the nation. Mr. Gray is just the man to lead Indiana into the phalanx of reliable democratic states and this is the highest possible compliment we can pay him.

DISTINGUISHED OFFICIALS

Of the Pennsylvania Company on Their Semi-Annual Inspection Tour.

A special train bearing a party of the distinguished officials of the Pennsylvania company arrived in the city yesterday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, on their semi-annual inspection tour. The party consisted of Mr. E. B. Taylor, the new general superintendent of the road; Messrs. J. C. Spencer and D. L. Slataper, chief engineers of the maintenance of way, and a number of other officials of the company. They came from Crestline, Ohio, where they were joined by Mr. C. D. Law, the superintendent of this division.

They made an inspection of the company's depot buildings and a tour of the Pittsburg works, both the east yards and the main shops, and expressed themselves as very highly pleased with the way in which the affairs of the company were being conducted at this point.

The party stopped at the McKinney house for supper and breakfast and left this morning for a further inspection of the company's property west. They were joined at this point by Mr. F. D. Cassanave, superintendent of motive power; A. H. Polhamus, road foreman of engineers, and Mr. C. H. Walton, train dispatcher, who will go with the distinguished party as far as Chicago.

It was the first visit of Mr. E. B. Taylor, the new superintendent, to this city, and he consequently attracted considerable attention among the employes of the company. He is a young man for such a responsible office, being only thirty-eight years old. Of fine personal appearance and pleasant in address, he made friends with all to whom he was introduced, and the new superintendent will undoubtedly make a popular and efficient officer.

Nominate Them by Acclamation.

[Lawrenceburg Register.]

The Ledger heartily agrees with the following from the South Bend Times: "There is a strong sentiment in favor of the renomination, by the democracy, of Supreme Judges Niblack, Zollars and Howk. All three are eminently worthy of re-election. They are good men and able judges."—New Albany Ledger.

We agree with the Ledger in the above. These gentlemen should be nominated by acclamation. They are able, pure men and such men only should be upon the supreme bench.

To the Morning "Side-sticks."

Having seen your challenge to play a friendly game of base ball, we have decided to forego the pleasure of doing up the several league clubs now practicing to defeat us, and instead, will meet you not in a friendly spirit, by any means, but with a premeditated determination to do up the "snidest" base ballists that the city of Fort Wayne lays claim to. Come on if you feel so disposed. We will clean you out so that it will be impossible for you to set type for a week.
EVENING "SIDE-STICKS."

The Building Boom.

Frederick Graffe has been given a permit to build an addition to his house on lot 423, Hanna's addition, to cost $50.

M. A. Schweiters, to build a kitchen and shed on lot 4, Beck's homestead, to cost $25.

W. and J. J. Geake, to build a shop on lot 4, Ewing's addition, to cost $500.

August Huxoll, to build a barn on lot 28, Hanna's addition, to cost $150.

B. J. Becker, to repair house on lot 2, Ewing's addition, to cost $200.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills are suited to every age. They are mild and pleasant in action, thorough and searching in effect, and, being sugar-coated, are easy to take. These pills never fail to give satisfaction.

ENGLAND and her laws governing the sale of food have been held up to us as pretty near to perfection. We have been told by American writers on the subject that the English laws respecting fraud in the sale of food are the best made and the best enforced laws in the civilized world. This, and the additional fact that in Chicago the authorities refused to permit a man to open a horse-flesh market, give interest to recent council proceedings in West Ham Town, England. It was reported that horse-flesh had long been sold to the poor people, who supposed they were buying beef, and it was argued that the flesh must be that of diseased horses, since no butcher could afford to kill well horses for food. Yet, though this was practically admitted, the council decided that they could do nothing in the case, since there is no law to prohibit the sale of horse-flesh for beef, and no law to prohibit the sale of diseased horse-flesh. If it were diseased beef they could reach it, but, though it is sold as beef, it is not beef, and is, therefore, beyond the law. In this case fraud carries with it its own reward.

OUR ASSESSORS.

What a Correspondent Thinks About the Efforts to Dodge the Officers.

The assessors are on the warpath; they have been on the warpath for the last few weeks, and many persons who are fortunate, or unfortunate, enough to have a few dollars worth of personal property, have been busy trying to dodge them during all of this time. Somehow or other they seem to know just where a man lives, and if he isn't at home, they know where they will find him.

It is useless to try to dodge an assessor; he will find you. He has a remarkable long nose and his legs will bring him face to face with you before he makes his reports to the proper officer. Consequently the best thing for a person to do is to make up his mind to put on a bold front and meet the man who wants to know how you are fixed in regard to the possession of this world's goods.

A man is never so poor as when the assessor calls upon him. Ten minutes before he may have been boasting of his worldly posessions, but when the assessor comes his idea of his wealth drops, and if he has got anything at all, it posesses so little a value that is hardly worth mentioning.

It is a time in a man's life when it seems to be a blessing to think that he really hasn't got anything at all and that his credits are all debts. But you cannot fool an assessor very much. He knows before he enters your doorway just about what you ought to be listed for, and although you may put things down to their lowest notch, he is not deceived in regard to your assessment.

He always catches a fellow in some way, and if nothing else is found, the watch chain dangling from the vest pocket gives him an opportunity for dotting down $5 or $10 and rings your name in on the tax list for a city and county poll tax.

"Have you got a dog?" That is the question that rests as a heavy burden upon the tax payer's heart. He wishes he had sold or given the pup away before the assessor had made his rounds. But it is no use to conceal the fact. That assessor knows as well as you do that you have a canine. He may not be worth powder enough to blow him up, but the assessor has had his eye on him long before he entered the house and down goes the dog to add an extra increase to your taxes.

Be kind to the assessor. Paying taxes is one of the great privileges of an American citizen, and if it was not for his persistency in hunting you out, you you would not be doing your patriotic part in bearing the burdens of the city, county and state government. This thought ought to reconcile you to the assessors' call, and make you feel aggreived if, perchance, he missed you on his rounds. LEN.

A Pleasant Wedding.

Yesterday afternoon, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Diedrich Rodenbeck, in Adams township, occurred the marriage of their daughter, Minnie, to Mr. John Zelt, a prominent young farmer of this county. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Stock, of the Lutheran church, in the presence of a large number of the friends and relatives of the contracting parties, after which a pleasant reception was held.

Over three hundred guests were seated at supper and a most delightful evening followed the sumptuous repast. Mr. and Mrs. Zelt dispensed with a wedding tour and will at once commence married life on a farm belonging to the groom situated a few miles from New Haven.

Card of Thanks.

To the Editor of the SENTINEL:

To the Knights Templars and the many friends who so generously assisted us in our recent bereavement, we desire to express to them our sincere and heartfelt thanks. In that "dark hour," when the heart seemed crushed, it is indeed a blessing to feel the sympathy of true friends. Respectfully,
MRS. J. W. CHALLENGER AND FAMILY.

Emperor William Never Smoked.

The late emperor of Germany never smoked, which may account for the fact that his digestion was absolutely unimpaired; but whenever any of his officers dined or took supper with him he was wont, when the coffee was brought in, to ask: "Has any one of you gentlemen a cigarette to spare?" and selecting one from the cases eagerly proffered to him, to light it, to draw from it one puff of smoke, and then let it go out as though inadverdently. Knowing full well that nine-tenths of his guests were confirmed smokers, precluded by etiquette from indulging in their favorite habit until the example should be set them by their sovereign, the emperor waived his own strong dislike to the scent of tobacco in order that they might not be balked of any accustomed pleasure at his table.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

The Population of Iowa.

Iowa lies as near as may be at the geographical center of the United States. As might be expected from this situation its population has been drawn from all directions. The census of 1885 shows that of 1,753,980 inhabitants only one-half were born in the state. Of the 500,000 people who have emigrated to Iowa from other states, 20,000 were born in New England, 160,000 in the middle states, 60,000 in the southern states, 240,000 in the other states east of the Mississippi and 20,000 in the western states and territories. Of the 300,000 foreign inhabitants of the state, Germany has sent most, 120,000, followed by Ireland, 42,000, and Norway, 27,000.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Building a Floating Theatre.

A St. Louis man is having a novel craft constructed at a Jeffersonville, Ind., ship yard. It is to be a floating theatre, and will cost about $50,000. The boat is to be built in the shape of a house, with flat bottom, and it is to be finished up with an elegant stage, boxes and all the belongings of a first class theatre. It is the intention of the proprietor to float his theatre all along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, and to give first class dramatic and musical entertainments at the ports in various cities during the summer months, when all the theatres are closed.—New York Post.

An Unworthy Proposition.

The report comes from Washington that the Republican senate will refuse to confirm any nomination of a successor to Chief Justice Waite until the election of next November has been decided. The justification offered for this delay is that it would be "an impropriety to allow an outgoing president, representing a party likely to be dismissed from power, to name the most important judicial head of the government." * * *

The proposed delay is not reprehensible when applied to a vacancy in the chief justiceship of the United States, because it makes a partisan prize of that high judicial office. Legal ability, experience, high character and unsullied reputation ought to command the confirmation of the senate, without regard to politics. It would be the duty of every senator to vote for the rejection of an unfit or a mere political nominee for the head of the supreme court of the United States. But the proposition to hang up such an appointment to abide the result of a political contest is to make it the prize of the victors and to cast it into the mire of partisanship. Will the people be willing to trust a party which thus unblushingly advertises its desire to seize upon the chief justiceship as a political perquisite?—New York World.

Ingalls as a Seer.

Senator Ingalls is now writing alarming letters to his friends for publication, telling them of rebel plots and blood-curdling Democratic designs discovered by him. But his power as a Titus Oates and his credit as an alarmist were seriously impaired by that boomerang speech he hurled at the country the other day. "The Corcoran Art gallery full of pictures of rebel generals in uniform, with not a single Union commander to keep them company," will not scare the people as much as it seems to have scared him—will not surely convince them, as it seems to have convinced him, that "the southern Confederacy is now an active organized political power as much as it was in 1861." They will simply say this is another one of the spectral horrors conjured up by the diseased mind which the other day saw a soldier of the Confederacy in Gen. McClellan, and an "ally of the Confederacy" in Gen. Hancock.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A Subject for Pity.

We have endeavored to demonstrate to Mr. Ingalls that a United States senator owes something to the country in the way of example. Assuredly the presiding officer of the senate should have more dignity than an ordinary pot house politician. Mr. Ingalls seems to think otherwise. Like the cat which devoured the canary, he is proud of his late exploit. We fear that he is beyond redemption. We feel sorry for the man who exhibits his infirmities and is not sensible of his misfortune.—New York World.

Why, Oh Why?

If Senator Sherman is the one and only Ohio man who can be considered in connection with the Republican nomination for the presidency, why is there such an expenditure of breath, and such a waste of "lamp black and rags," to place that proposition before the people?—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Talk Is Cheap.

It does do the Republicans of Kansas so much good to get together in Topeka and flap the old shirt, that we haven't the heart to remonstrate. Beyond the fleeting pleasure of the moment we are not aware that the flap accomplishes anything.—Kansas City Times.

Keifer's Downfall.

Mr. Keifer, of Ohio, can not even get a district appointment to the Republican convention. No fall was ever more complete and emphatic than that of J. Warren Keifer.—Kansas City Times.

If ——.

Senator Ingalls takes back nothing. He would not take back a good name—if he ever had one.—Exchange.

Hancock and McClellan.

Brave heroes, dead and turned to clay!
Did you ever dream that, after all these years,
Your very names would serve to kindle into life
A flame almost as fierce as that
Which called you into power?
And that the self same foes,
Who met you face to face,
Would have to lend a voice, to save
Your records from disgrace?

Advice to Mothers.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. She Tried and Knows.

A leading chemist of New York says: "No plasters of such merit as the Ath-lo-pho-ros Plasters have ever before been produced." They are a novelty because they are not made simply to sell cheap, they are the best that science, skill and money can produce, and will do what is claimed for them. For sprains, aches, weakness, lameness, etc., they are unequaled.

You Carry

A whole medicine chest in your pocket, with one box of Ayer's Pills. As they operate directly on the stomach and bowels, they indirectly affect, every other organ of the body. When the stomach is out of order, the head is affected, digestion fails, the blood becomes impoverished, and you fall an easy victim to any prevalent disease. Miss M. E. Boyle, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., puts the whole truth in a nutshell, when she says: "I use no other medicine than Ayer's Pills. They are all that any one needs, and just splendid to save money in doctors' bills."

Here is an instance of

who lost his medicine chest, but, having at hand a bottle of Ayer's Pills, found himself fully equipped.—J. Arrison, M. D., of San José, Cal., writes:

"Some three years ago, by the merest accident, I was forced, so to speak, to prescribe Ayer's Cathartic Pills for several sick men among a party of engineers in the Sierra Nevada mountains, my medicine chest having been lost in crossing a mountain torrent. I was surprised and delighted at the action of the Pills, so much so, indeed, that I was led to a further trial of them, as well as of your Cherry Pectoral and Sarsaparilla. I have nothing but praise to offer in their favor."

John W. Brown, M. D., of Oceana, W. Va., writes: "I prescribe Ayer's Pills in my practice, and find them excellent. I urge their general use in families."

T. E. Hastings, M. D., of Baltimore, Md., writes: "That Ayer's Pills do control and cure the complaints for which they are designed, is as conclusively proven to me as anything possibly can be. They are the best cathartic and aperient within the reach of the profession."

is offered by the manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, for a case of Chronic Nasal Catarrh which they cannot cure.

SYMPTOMS OF CATARRH.—Dull, heavy headache, obstruction of the nasal passages, discharges falling from the head into the throat, sometimes profuse, watery, and acrid, at others, thick, tenacious, mucous, purulent, bloody and putrid; the eyes are weak, watery, and inflamed; there is ringing in the ears, deafness, hacking or coughing to clear the throat, expectoration of offensive matter, together with scabs from ulcers; the voice is changed and has a nasal twang; the breath is offensive; smell and taste are impaired; there is a sensation of dizziness, with mental depression, a hacking cough and general debility. Only a few of the above-named symptoms are likely to be present in any one case. Thousands of cases annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, result in consumption, and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive and dangerous, or less understood by physicians.

"Untold Agony from Catarrh."

Prof. W. HAUSNER, the famous mesmerist, of Ithaca, N. Y., writes: "Some ten years ago I suffered untold agony from chronic nasal catarrh. My family physician gave me up as incurable and said I must die. My case was such a bad one, that every day, towards sunset, my voice would become so hoarse I could barely speak above a whisper. In the morning my coughing and clearing of my throat would almost strangle me. By the use of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, in three months, I was a well man, and the cure has been permanent."

"Constantly Hawking and Spitting."

THOMAS J. RUSHING, Esq., 2902 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I was a great sufferer from catarrh for three years. At times I could hardly breathe, and was constantly hawking and spitting, and for the last eight months could not breathe through the nostrils. I thought nothing could be done for me. Luckily, I was advised to try Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and I am now a well man. I believe it to be the only sure remedy for catarrh now manufactured, and one has only to give it a fair trial to experience astounding results and a permanent cure."

Three Bottles Cure Catarrh.

ELI ROBBINS, Runyan P. O., Columbia Co., Pa., says: "My daughter had catarrh when she was five years old, very badly. I saw Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy advertised, and procured a bottle for her, and soon saw that it helped her; a third bottle effected a permanent cure. She is now eighteen years old and sound and hearty."

Curiosities of Superstition.

Louis Napoleon in his will emphasizes the solemn declaration: "With regard to my son, let him keep as a talisman the seal I used to wear attached to my watch." This piece of fetichism would appear to have formed yet another link between the imperial exile that has passed from our midst and those Latin races whose cause he affected to represent, whose superstition he certainly shared. Indeed, the ancient Romans degraded a priest because his miter fell, and unmade a dictator because a rat squeaked. Cæsar crossed the Rubicon because on the opposite bank he saw a man with a fine figure. His nephew felt confident of winning the battle of Actium, because he met a peasant of the name of Nicolaus mounted on an ass. Wolsey was warned of his doom by a crosier-head; Sejanus, by a flight of crows. Dr. Johnson objected to going under a ladder. Montaigne avoided giving his left foot priority in putting on his stockings. Alexander was believed to have untied the Gordian knot with a slice of his sword. For good luck's sake, Augusta wore some portion of a sea-calf; Charlemagne, some trinket of unknown value. Mahommed was all fate. Bonaparte all star and destiny. Cromwell believed in September 3, and Louis Napoleon in December 2. Sylla called himself Felix, the favored child of fortune, and Timoleon turned his house into a temple of Chance. Alexander, if we may credit the account given by Quintus Curtus, was terrified by blood flowing from inside his soldier's bread during the siege of Tyre in 382 B. C. His seer, Aristander, foresaw in this crimson efflux of the vital stream out of the commissariat a happy issue for the Macedonians; and the warriors, thus nerved, took Tyre.

No doubt there was a deal of imposture in alchemy; no doubt, too, the wish for gold was father to the thought of alchemy; but this itself will not account for Henry IV. prohibiting alchemy; for God-fearing Henry VI. eagerly encouraged it; for Pope John XXII. of France making a Franciscian monk his grand almoner, as the reward of a hundred years' reign promised to his credulity by that pretender to the discovery of the grand elixir; or for the Jean De Lisle expiating by an early death in the Bastile his bold attempts to persuade Louis XIV. and his Ministers that he possessed the gold-making stone. Among the wide circle of influential believers that alchemy thus entranced were Roger Bacon, Albertus Magnus, and St. Thomas Aquinas, and even the transcendent intellects of Leibnitz, Spinoza, and Verulam. However, in pursuit of this phantom, Roger Bacon casually stumbled on the composition of gunpowder; Geber, on the properties of acids; Von Helmot on the nature of gas geist or spirit; and Dr. Glauber, of Amsterdam, on the use of salt which bears his name.

Luther and Verulam believed in witches. In his folio dictionary, Johnson defines a witch, "A woman given to unlawful arts." Knighton tell us of persons taxed with keeping devils in the shape of cats. And wise and learned Roman Catholics believe even greater wonders still. For example, Spain, among many images of the Virgin, possesses one at Sarragossa which used to restore lost legs; whilst Austria boasts an image of the Virgin which secures good harvests.—Chamber's Journal.

The Ugly Howling Ape.

There are eight species of apes in Dutch Guiana. The most conspicuous of them is the howling ape, which is also one of the best known and largest of the race. It is called a baboon in the colony, alouatte by the Caribs, and toli by the Arowaks. When standing up it is about three feet high, and weighs about twenty pounds. It lives in both the coast regions and the interior, and eats fruits, leaves, and buds. Its big, scantily haired belly, the thick, tawny skin of its back, passing into a purple brown at the back of the head and feet; its black face, with a strong set of teeth, and the prominence under its neck, covered with a long yellow beard, altogether make it one of the ugliest apes of tropical America. It lives in small troops of rarely more than twelve individuals, among which is always to be found an old, full-grown male, which takes a higher place on the trees than the others, and leads the lugubrious concert by which these apes are so broadly distinguished from other species. The windpipe of the male is much stronger and more complicated than that of any of the other apes, and is connected with a vocal apparatus composed of bone substance of about the size of a goose-egg, which is set in the hollow of the under jaw. It looks from without like a wen, and acts as a sounding-board to strengthen the voice to an almost incredible extent. The females have a similar apparatus, but only about an inch in size. I do not know what it is that prompts the animal to set up its great cry. It is believed in the colony that it cries out only when the flood-tide begins, but this is wrong, for these apes howl at all times of day, and quite as much in the interior of the country, where there can be no tide. There may be some atmospheric influence which provokes the males to howl, while the females join in with them. There cannot be a sexual impulse in the matter, for that would make old and young howl together. I have had opportunities to hear this howling a great many times, and to observe the howlers from a very close vicinity. Every time there sat an old male up in a tree, supporting himself on his fore feet, and having his long tail, naked of hair on the inside for about nine inches from the end, black and smooth as a hand, wrapped around a limb, while other males, females, and young, sat beneath him in a variety of positions. All at once the old fellow would set up a horrible rattling, "Rochu, rochu," which, after five or six repetitions, passed into a bellowing in which all the others would join, and which was loud enough to make one afraid of losing his hearing. — Popular Science Monthly.

MUSTANG LINIMENT

MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT cures all ailments of HORSES, MULES and CATTLE. Rub in!

In the Carpathians.

Sunday is a very entertaining day at Sinaia. All the peasants come from round about with carpets, costumes, and towels, fruits of their industry during the long winter. They station themselves in the gardens, opposite the most central hotel, and there expose their goods over the balconies and benches to tempt the visitors. On a saint's day peasants come from very long distances with their goods packed on mules, and hold quite a fair. Roumanian carpets are of a rougher texture than most oriental work, hardly bigger than large rugs, and of every shade. The costumes are often most beautifully worked in different colors and ornamented with gold and silver spangles. They find a great sale at Sinaia, as the national costume is popular among the Roumanian ladies. They think little of paying many hundred francs for one costume. The chief beauty of this dress is its extreme simplicity, but the effect is very picturesque, as it suits the dark eyes and coloring of the Roumanians. They say it dates back to the Roman days. Of course ladies wear very elaborate editions beautifully worked; so do the richer peasants on gala occasions. The ordinary national dress of a Roumanian peasant woman consists of a coarse white linen shirt, embroidered on the breast, neck, shoulders, and wrists in blue, black, or red wool. A petticoat reaching to the ankles, also embroidered round the bottom, is of the same white linen, and over this an apron, or catrino, of course, strong stuff, dark blue or black, generally bordered with a red or yellow stripe; the whole is confined round the waist by a broad band of different colors. In winter they wear an overcoat or sleeveless skin waistcoat beautifully worked in wools. During the warm weather they generally go barefoot. An unmarried girl either leaves her head uncovered or ties on a handkerchief, while married women wear long veils. It is a very simple dress, which seems to suit their primitive sort of life, for the peasant woman weaves all the linen and cloth used by the family. In the Carpathians the women are, as a rule, fine and handsome, with a natural free, noble bearing and gait. They seem very strong and do not mind hard work. I have seen them divide with men the labor of making roads and building houses. The men's dress consists of a coarse white linen shirt, like a tunic, worn outside the pantaloons, and fastened round the waist with a strong, broad leather belt. The rather full pantaloons are confined from the knee by the throngs of the sandals, or, as the Roumanians call them, opinci—soles made of goat-skin, cut the size of the foot, and bound on by crossed bands. The mountaineers wear picturesque large hats or sheep-skin caps (caciolas). The addition in winter is the sleeveless embroidered waistcoat, or an enormous sheep-skin jacket, doubtless very warm, but which has often seen too many generations to recommend it to fastidious tastes.—Catholic World.

Another Story of Lincoln.

As too much cannot be said about Mr. Lincoln I am induced to send you the following account of an interview which the writer had with him:

I called upon him to ask for a position in the service for my son. Alas! I received it; my boy went to the war and never returned. I was accompanied by a lady companion, a Southern woman, and we had with us a little boy, a grandson of Lord Fairfax. After a pleasant interview my friend said: "Will you give me your autograph for a friend in England?" I, however, had hesitated to ask him, although wanting one very much. He went to his desk and wrote, "Yours truly, A. Lincoln," but instead of giving it to my friend, who had asked him for it, he handed it to me, and I still have it among my treasures. He then wrote simply "A. Lincoln." Handing it to my friend he remarked sotto voice: "That is good enough for England."

I then said: "Mr. President, I have brought a grandson of Lord Fairfax to see you." He was a beautiful boy, and Mr. Lincoln, who was always fond of children, extended his hand to him, saying, "He bids fair to be a handsomer man than I am. Well, my little man, you are for the Union?" The boy looked up into Mr. Lincoln's face and replied: "Somewhat!" Both I and my friend were horrified, she, a Southern woman, fearing we would be arrested, and I, that I would fail in getting my boy's appointment, but Mr. Lincoln only laughed, and said: "I guess there are a good many somewhats!"

Just as we were about to withdraw, wishing to express my thanks for his courtesy, I said: "Oh! Mr. Lincoln, you do not know how much I shall prize your autograph, and if you only get us out of this war it will be ever very precious." I shall never forget his earnest, careworn, and yet hopeful expression of countenance as he replied. "You pray for me, and I will do the best I can."

After getting into our carriage I said to the boy, who was only about 7 years of age. "Why did you say you were somewhat for the Union?" He replied: "Why, mamma is always crying and praying for the South, and papa is serving Uncle Sam, and I cannot help being somewhat."—Cor. Philadelphia Press.

Three Stories.

Ruth and Olive, two irresistible girls of the rosy, busy, breezy sort, that delight the kindergartner's heart, got up yesterday morning in the freezing cold and scampered as usual into the nursery. They came down stairs a little late, excited over the cold weather; they seemed to have forgotten that there was any such thing.

"Why, mamma," said Olive, "we got up this morning and ran into the nursery, and it was so cold there that we thought we'd freeze, and then we found that big afghan, and we took it and wrapped ourselves both up in it, and we thanked God!"

Two jolly stories of a child contributed to the Listener:

There is a little 4-year-old niece of mine who was almost a babe in arms when we were living side by side on the Swampscott Highlands. She had been prepared for bed one night and was asked to say her prayers, when she replied:

"'I shan't say them any more; God knows them well enough by this time."

"And afterward, when her mother was about to turn off the gas and leave the room, the child said:

"'I don't want to be left all alone in the dark.'

"'You won't be left alone, dear; God will be with you, said the mother.

"'Well, I don't care for Him. I'd rather have one of my own family.'"—Boston Transcript.

The Origin of Petroleum.

Prof. Medeleef in Engineering has advanced the theory that petroleum is of mineral origin, and that its production is going on, and may continue almost indefinitely. He has succeeded in making it artificially by a similar process to that which he believes is going on in the earth, and experts find it impossible to distinguish between the natural and the manufactured article.

His hypothesis is that water finds its way below the crust of the earth, and then meets with carbides of metals, particularly of iron in a growing state.

The water is decomposed into its constituent gases; the oxygen unites with the iron, while the hydrogen takes up the carbon, and ascends to a higher region, where part of it is condensed into mineral oil, and part remains as natural gas, to escape where it can find an outlet, or to remain stored at great pressure until a borehole is put down to provide it a passage to the surface.

Oil-bearing strata occurs in the vicinity of mountain ranges, and it is supposed that the upheaval of the hills has dislocated the strata below sufficiently to give the water access to depths from which it is ordinarily shut out. If the center of the earth contains large amounts of metallic carbides, we have in prospect a store of fuel against the days when our coal will be exhausted.

A Great Battle

Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. A good reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive the desperate enemy from the field, and restore peace and bodily health for many years. Try this peculiar medicine.

Refreshments were served and the evening was delightfully spent by everybody present.

The Grand Rapids and Indiana had a costly accident in Michigan last Thursday, but with its usual luck, no one was killed. As passenger train No. 29 was leaving Luther it was derailed and thrown into the Little Manistee river. The accident occurring near the approach to the bridge, a terrific wreck was the result, the stream being filled with debris. James Bessie, the engineer, was thrown into the water, and a tool chest fell upon him, injuring him severely. Dick Bird, the fireman, escaped with only a few scratches by leaping into the water. Had the train been running at full speed many lives would have been lost, and as it is, it is almost a miracle that every one in the train escaped.

Out at the east Pittsburg yards this morning, the trainmen found Al. Meyers, an east end brakeman, badly used up. The Pennsylvania company is trying to lease or purchase the C., R. and C. road, owned by the C., R. and D. It extends from Richmond, Ind., to Hamilton, O. If the Pennsylvania company succeeds in coming to satisfactory terms with the owners of the C., R. and C. road it will give them a line of their own to Chicago.

This morning was a lovely one for the hunting of news. It had to be hunted, however, for it was very scarce. No wrecks, no accidents, no elopements, no suicides, no sensations, in fact nothing of interest presented itself to a hungry reporter to catch onto, and as a consequence he voted the day as one of the very many dull ones that are coming altogether too frequently for a newspaper man.

The night watchman at the Bass works makes his rounds throughout every department of that establishment each hour during the night. It is his duty to try each door to see that it is securely looked on his hourly trips and a system of electric wires, communicating with the main office, is so arranged that it can be seen in the morning whether he has performed his duty or not. Pat Carl is the watchman and the board at the main office always shows a clean record in the morning.

GASOLINE EXPLODES.

A Young Lady is Severely Burned This Morning.

At the residence of Mr. George H. Loesch, on West Washington street, this morning, the awful fate of Miss Evard, in Milan township, nearly befell Miss Annie Goebfert.

The young woman arranged the gasoline stove and started a brisk blaze to prepare breakfast for the family.

She went up stairs for a moment and returning found the stove enveloped in flames, reinforced by the dripping oil from the can-holder, which sprang a leak.

With rare heroism the girl sought to smother the fire, but the oil fell upon her and in an instant her garments were ablaze. Her hair was singed off, her face was blistered and her arms and hands badly burned, as the sleeve coverings were first to fall in ashes.

The flames communicated to the woodwork of the kitchen. The fire had much headway when the department responded and smothered the elements.

Miss Goebfert is severely burned, but will recover.

QUITE IMPORTANT.

The Meeting of the Democratic City Central Committee To-night.

This evening, at 7:30, occurs the meeting of the city central committee, at the council chamber, on Barr street.

Too much importance cannot be attached to this meeting, for since the city voted conventions out of order, it is the only body to give expression to the views of the party and the only tribunal through which announcements of future policy and purposes can be made.

The committee besides must name a date for the nomination of three water works trustees by popular vote and see to the nomination of democratic councilmanic candidates in the different wards.

All democrats are invited to the meeting and all have a voice in the deliberations, through the wisdom and courtesy of its chairman.

which embraces all of last year's favorites, and other equally desirable weaves recently introduced.

This maker acknowledges no peer, and few, if any, equals. The highest degree of perfection in weave, evenness, finish, uniformity, and good taste is plainly manifest in these fabrics. One way, the finest selected silk; the other, the finest selected Australian wool. The sombreness and softness of the wool is exquisitely relieved by the lustre and dressiness of the silk, the result being the very acme of textile refinement, and ladies of good taste adopt them instinctively.

GENERAL BOULANGER.

He is Greeted With Cheers by the Population of Prunes.

PARIS, April 20.—The chamber of deputies having re-convened yesterday, on the demand of Premier Floquet, the chamber, by a vote of 377 to 177, adopted an order of the day, expressing confidence in the government, and the conviction that it will secure by its energy respect for republican institutions, the triumph of its policy of progress and reform, and the liberty desired by the country.

General Boulanger, who arrived in an open carriage, was cheered by the immense crowd that had assembled outside of the parliamentary building.

The chamber adjourned until Saturday. General Boulanger returned to the Hotel Du Louvre in his carriage, and was greeted with acclaims by the people. Perfect order was maintained.

The Oldest Man in the World.

SANTA CRUZ, April 20.—Col. Edward Sumner, of San Francisco, is visiting his daughter, Mrs. Ada E. Taylor, on Locust street. Col. Sumner is the oldest Free Mason known to be living in the world. He has been a Mason for seventy-one years. He was born in 1796. A remarkable fact is that he can read without the aid of glasses.

In the war of 1812 he was a member of a transportation company in New York, which was engaged in transporting munitions and troops. He came to California in 1850, but returned to Wisconsin a few years after. He served in the Wisconsin legislature during 1859-60. In 1863 he once more came to California, where he has since remained. Colonel Sumner is a descendant of the Sumners who came to America in the Mayflower.

FRANK HOUSE.

GEO. H. PENDLETON.

Our Minister to Germany Suddenly Stricken With Apoplexy at Berlin This Morning.

BERLIN, April 20.—Mr. Pendleton, the American minister, while traveling to Frankfort, was stricken with apoplexy. He was taken to the hospital at Wiesbaden, where he now lies.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 20.—No intelligence concerning the illness of United States Minister Geo. H. Pendleton, referred to in the dispatch from Berlin to-day, has been received by his brother, Mr. Elliott H. Pendleton, of this city. Minister Pendleton has only one daughter in Berlin with him, and it is probable his journey was taken alone.

Minister Pendleton's son, Francis K. Pendleton, of this city, has received a cable dispatch from Wiesbaden, informing him that while his father sustained a slight apoplectic stroke, his condition is not at any time considered dangerous, nor is any danger feared now.

This morning he was again reassured by cable dispatches both from Wiesbaden and Berlin. The secretary of legation at Berlin cables: "Continued improvement; no danger now feared. Your father telegraphed me himself to-day."

WASHINGTON, April 20.—A cable dispatch was received at the state department from Berlin, saying that Mr. Pendleton, feeling unwell, left Berlin last Monday for Wiesbade, and on Wednesday evening suffered what he said was a slight stroke of paralysis. He had recovered yesterday sufficiently, however, to send instructions to the legation at Berlin.

HEAL DOW NOT FOR THE DECISION.

Just a Little Liquor Found in Insufficient to Secure a Conviction.

PORTLAND, Me., April 20.—A few days ago Judge Walton, of the supreme court, in a liquor case at Bath instructed the state constable that the finding of a "small quantity" of liquor when search was made under the seizure law was not of itself sufficient to warrant a conviction.

Neal Dow said yesterday that he was satisfied the decision is incorrect. A decision of the supreme court on those terms would practically put an end to the Maine law. The greater number of seizures at low grog shops were in small quantities, and by inference Judge Walton might be supposed to hold that such seizures should not be made. There is nothing in the search and seizure clause implying quantity, and the admission of such limitation would be absurd.

COUNTING THE DEAD

In the Bethel House Fire at St. Louis—Three Bodies Found.

ST. LOUIS, April 10.—A thorough search in the ruins of the Bethel home fire resulted in finding the bodies of three men: John Grant, a colored wharfman; Jackson, a white levee laborer, and Smithay, a white roustabout. In the hospitals the burned and bruised are: George Miller, hands burned; Frank Henken, legs hurt; Alexander Webb, knee hurt; James Smith, badly burned about the body. The total pecuniary loss is $10,000; on building, $5,000.

A further investigation strengthens the impression that the fire was incendiary. The three dead bodies taken from the ruins are not known, it being ascertained that the men mentioned in the previous report are alive.

The President of the Adams Express Company, is Not Expected to Live.

NEW YORK, April 20.—William B. Dinsmore, president of the Adams Express company, is ill at his home, and is not expected to live more than two or three days at the most. He is seventy-eight years old and known throughout the United States as a veteran in the express business.

Conkling Died a Poor Man.

NEW YORK, April 20.—It is learned that Ex-Senator Conkling died a comparatively poor man. He left a house and lot in Utica valued at $25,000. NEW YORK, April 20.—The funeral services were held this morning in the Trinity chapel over the remains of Roscoe Conkling. The pall-bearers were: Judge Shipman, Mayor Abram S. Hewitt; S. L. M. Barlow, Clarence A. Seward, Manton Marble, Senator John P. Jones, Senator J. Don Cameron, Judge William A. Wallace, Walter S. Church, and H. Bailey. Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix was the officiating clergyman. The services were simple, and no sermon was preached.

After the services the remains were borne to the depot, placed on a special train and will reach Utica at 6:45 p. m.

WASHINGTON.

Proceedings of Congress—The Senate Adjourns Until Monday.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—The house passed the Indian appropriation bill.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—After further debate last evening, which at times was quite exciting, the senate came to a vote on the substitute for the Dakota bill and then on the bill itself. The substitute was defeated, yeas 26, nays 26. The bill passed, yeas 26, nays 23, a strictly party vote. Mr. Platte gave notice that he would at an early day call up the other territorial bill. A bill was reported and placed on calendar for a public building at Akron, O.

Adjourned until Monday.

HOUSE.

The house has postponed further consideration of the tariff bill until Tuesday next, and is considering the Indian appropriation bill.

The house went into a committee of the whole (Mr. Springer, of Illinois, in the chair), for the further consideration of the Indian appropriation bill.

An amendment was adopted appropriating $30,000 for the education of Indian pupils in Alaska. The amendment was adopted striking out the provision for an inspector of Indian schools and providing for a superintendent of Indian schools. Mr. Bayne, of Pennsylvania offered an amendment providing that at Indian training schools where church organizations are assisting in the educational work, the christian bible may be taught in the native language of the Indians, if in the opinion of the persons in charge of the schools it was deemed conducive to the moral welfare of the pupils, and it was adopted.

ONE WIFE IS ENOUGH NOW

For the Saintly Mormons, Because They Can't Safely Evade the Law.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, April 20.—The United States marshal, as receiver in the government suits to confiscate the property of the Mormon church, continues to search for and claim property which, it is alleged, the church has held and disposed of to individuals.

While testifying before the examiner in these suits, Angus McCannon, president of the Salt Lake state of Zion, answered that he did not now sign any recommendations to the temple for plural marriages, and that over a year ago, the president of the church notified him he would not countersign any more such recommendations; therefore such marriages had been discontinued. The new council contains four prominent gentiles among its members.

The Weather.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Indiana: Warmer, fair weather.

$10,000 OIL FIRE!

The Standard Oil Tanks, Their Offices and Store Houses Go Up in Smoke.

This afternoon, at 3 o'clock, a fire started, possibly from a locomotive spark, in the Standard oil yards, east of the city on the line of the Wabash road.

Like a flash the whole yard was ablaze, for everything out there is saturated with oil. A mountain like heap of barrels gave substance to the fire and heated the huge tanks to a bursting point.

At 3:20 the east tank exploded and the boiler was hurled a distance of 200 feet across the railroad track and over the heads of hundreds of bystanders, who made miraculous escapes.

This poured out the contents of the tank and burning oil ran through the yard in a perfect flood, adding fresh fuel to the flames.

When THE SENTINEL reporter left the scene at 3:40, the fire was raging with indications that every tank would explode, as well as the steam boiler used to propel the pump utilized in filling the barrels and tanks.

Great crowds hovered about the oil yards braving death, as it were, and invading dangerous territory as people do on occasions of this sort.

The mayor ordered the patrol wagon out with a posse of police to do guard duty and spare human lives that are threatened by the explosions.

The firemen are powerless to stay the flames and can only prevent them from spreading.

The company carried about $10,000 worth of oil and it with their property, is a total loss.

CHARGED WITH BIGAMY.

John S. Delano, of La Harpe, Ill., Locked Up—A Pension Officer Makes the Arrest.

CARTHAGE, Ill., April 20.—John S. Delano, of La Harpe, was placed in jail here yesterday in default of $1,000 bonds for alleged bigamy. It is said Delano has been married eight times, and that several of his wives are yet living. He has been drawing a Mexican war pension, and one of his wives living at Creston, Ia., who thought him to be dead, was drawing the same pension. Delano was arrested by a pension officer.

A MURDERER HUNG.

LEBANON, Tenn., April 20.—N. B. Lester, the murderer of Lieut. J. L. Lane, was hanged here to-day. He made a disconnected speech, explaining why he had committed the crime, and said Lane had destroyed his happiness and his family. Only thirty people witnessed the execution, six of whom were invited by Lester.

CLEVELAND BREWERS

It is Probable the Brewers of Cleveland Will Go Out on a Strike Saturday.

CLEVELAND, O., April 20.—It is probable the brewers will strike here next Saturday. A committee of the Brewers' union yesterday called on the owners of all the breweries with a yearly contract. Without a single exception they refused to sign it. The men threaten to strike and it is probable they will go out Saturday, though they may defer action until May 1, when the contracts expire.

CINCINNATI, O., April 20.—The strike of brewers is not making headway. A large number of skilled workmen have already been imported and none of the breweries have been compelled to close. Some have all the men they need and the boss brewers say that they will not re-employ the strikers. One brewery, Herancourts, has not yet joined the others, but it is said it will unite as soon as its president returns. About 700 men have stopped work.

E. A. K. HACKETT, Editor and Proprietor.

FRIDAY, APRIL 20, 1888.

The city election will occur Tuesday, May 1.

The Gazette gets cold comfort out of the Auburn convention.

The democratic nominees for councilmen should be our very best citizens. Nothing succeeds like success.

The gas company ought to keep pace with the times and place its illuminating gas within the reach of all people.

Hon. Tom Browne was renominated by the republicans of the Sixth congressional district, yesterday, at Rushville.

With Sherman and Harrison as presidential candidates the weather never will get warm. They are entirely too chilly.

The democrats can find abundant reason for reducing war taxes in the republican platforms and the speeches of its leaders.

Why not hold the Twelfth district congressional convention in Fort Wayne? It has been a great while since we had that honor.

Every institution in Fort Wayne moves forward but the gas company. It probably wants to assist the electric light into general use.

The courts may refuse to decree the people cheap water, but the ballots of the May election will be deposited with no uncertain sentiment.

Cheap water is a boon companion to fresh air and free sun-light. It ought to be within the reach of all the people at the least possible cost.

The democratic conventions held in Indiana so far have given President Cleveland's administration and tariff sentiments a ringing indorsement.

The democratic committee of the Eleventh congressional district met at Decatur yesterday and named Huntington and June 26 as the time and place for holding the convention. The judicial convention of the district will occur at Warren, May 5.

The Kendallville News and Postmaster John Smith, of that village, are at war with each other. This year ought to find the democrats in better humor, but both sides up there are at fault. By just conceding this point a reconciliation is possible and certainly profitable.

The Indianapolis News publishes Congressman Kelley's speech on the tariff reduction bill and referring to his plea for high protective taxes adds: "In all truth and soberness, the man who talks like that is either a knave or a fool." The News, too, is a reliable republican organ.

At the republican district conventions in the state, yesterday, all the delegates were instructed for Senator Harrison, insuring him a solid delegation to the Chicago convention. Mr. Harrison's nomination would make Mr. Cleveland's re-election practically unanimous, but it is too good a thing to hope for.

The Twelfth district republican convention at Auburn, yesterday, elected James S. Drake, of Lagrange, and W. H. Knisely, of Whitley, both Harrison men, as delegates to the Chicago convention. The assembly indorsed Senator Harrison for president and Colonel Robertson for governor, in spite of all opposition. The defeat of Mr. Will Wilson, of this city, for national delegate, was very unkind, and an ungrateful act from which the party cannot recover soon.

The Kokomo Dispatch, edited by Hon. J. O. Henderson, pays Mr. Dougherty this handsome compliment: "The Hon. Hugh Dougherty, of Bluffton, candidate for state auditor, subject to the democratic state convention, spent an hour between trains in this city Monday. A whiter man, a better democrat, or a truer gentleman does not live in Indiana. If he should be nominated for auditor, and it now looks that way, the party will have honored itself as well as have recognized and rewarded one of its wisest and most valuable leaders. Hugh Dougherty is every inch a man."

Governor Isaac P. Gray's administration has been royally indorsed by the democratic conventions held in the state so far and the expressions of favor to his candidacy for the vice-presidency are no less enthusiastic and general. Mr. Gray's name will be presented to the national convention with all the honors accorded any of Indiana's leaders and this fact cannot fail to impress itself on the democracy of the nation. Mr. Gray is just the man to lead Indiana into the phalanx of reliable democratic states and this is the highest possible compliment we can pay him.

DISTINGUISHED OFFICIALS

Of the Pennsylvania Company on Their Semi-Annual Inspection Tour.

A special train bearing a party of the distinguished officials of the Pennsylvania company arrived in the city yesterday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, on their semi-annual inspection tour. The party consisted of Mr. E. B. Taylor, the new general superintendent of the road; Messrs. J. C. Spencer and D. L. Slataper, chief engineers of the maintenance of way, and a number of other officials of the company. They came from Crestline, Ohio, where they were joined by Mr. C. D. Law, the superintendent of this division.

They made an inspection of the company's depot buildings and a tour of the Pittsburg works, both the east yards and the main shops, and expressed themselves as very highly pleased with the way in which the affairs of the company were being conducted at this point.

The party stopped at the McKinney house for supper and breakfast and left this morning for a further inspection of the company's property west. They were joined at this point by Mr. F. D. Casanave, superintendent of motive power; A. H. Polhamus, road foreman of engineers, and Mr. O. H. Walton, train dispatcher, who will go with the distinguished party as far as Chicago.

It was the first visit of Mr. E. B. Taylor, the new superintendent, to this city, and he consequently attracted considerable attention among the employes of the company. He is a young man for such a responsible office, being only thirty-eight years old. Of fine personal appearance and pleasant in address, he made friends with all to whom he was introduced, and the new superintendent will undoubtedly make a popular and efficient officer.

Nominate Them by Acclamation.

[Lawrenceburg Register.]

The Ledger heartily agrees with the following from the South Bend Times: "There is a strong sentiment in favor of the renomination, by the democracy, of Supreme Judges Niblack, Zollars and Howk. All three are eminently worthy of re-election. They are good men and able judges."—New Albany Ledger.

We agree with the Ledger in the above. These gentlemen should be nominated by acclamation. They are able, pure men and such men only should be upon the supreme bench.

To the Morning "Side-sticks."

Having seen your challenge to play a friendly game of base ball, we have decided to forego the pleasure of doing up the several league clubs now practicing to defeat us, and instead, will meet you not in a friendly spirit, by any means, but with a premeditated determination to do up the "sniders" base ballists that the city of Fort Wayne lays claim to. Come on if you feel so disposed. We will clean you out so that it will be impossible for you to set type for a week.
Evening "Side-sticks."

The Building Boom.

Frederick Graffe has been given a permit to build an addition to his house on lot 423, Hanna's addition, to cost $80.

M. A. Schweiters, to build a kitchen and shed on lot 4, Beak's homestead, to cost $35.

W. and J. J. Geake, to build a shop on lot 4, Ewing's addition, to cost $300.

August Huxoll, to build a barn on lot 28, Hanna's addition, to cost $150.

B. J. Becker, to repair house on lot 2, Ewing's addition, to cost $200.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills are suited to every age. They are mild and pleasant in action, thorough and searching in effect, and, being sugar-coated, are easy to take. These pills never fail to give satisfaction.

England and her laws governing the sale of food have been held up to us as pretty near to perfection. We have been told by American writers on the subject that the English laws respecting fraud in the sale of food are the best made and the best enforced laws in the civilized world. This, and the additional fact that in Chicago the authorities refused to permit a man to open a horse-flesh market, give interest to recent council proceedings in West Ham Town, England. It was reported that horse-flesh had long been sold to the poor people, who supposed they were buying beef, and it was argued that the flesh must be that of diseased horses, since no butcher could afford to kill well horses for food. Yet, though this was practically admitted, the council decided that they could do nothing in the case, since there is no law to prohibit the sale of horse-flesh for beef, and no law to prohibit the sale of diseased horse-flesh. If it were diseased beef they could reach it, but, though it is sold as beef, it is not beef, and is, therefore, beyond the law. In this case fraud carries with it its own reward.

OUR ASSESSORS.

What a Correspondent Thinks About the Efforts to Dodge the Officers.

The assessors are on the warpath; they have been on the warpath for the last few weeks, and many persons who are fortunate, or unfortunate, enough to have a few dollars worth of personal property, have been busy trying to dodge them during all of this time. Somehow or other they seem to know just where a man lives, and if he isn't at home, they know where they will find him.

It is useless to try to dodge an assessor; he will find you. He has a remarkable long nose and his legs will bring him face to face with you before he makes his reports to the proper officer. Consequently the best thing for a person to do is to make up his mind to put on a bold front and meet the man who wants to know how you are fixed in regard to the possession of this world's goods.

A man is never so poor as when the assessor calls upon him. Ten minutes before he may have been boasting of his worldly possessions, but when the assessor comes his idea of his wealth drops, and if he has got anything at all, it possesses so little a value that is hardly worth mentioning.

It is a time in a man's life when it seems to be a blessing to think that he really hasn't got anything at all and that his credits are all debts. But you cannot fool an assessor very much. He knows before he enters your doorway just about what you ought to be listed for, and although you may put things down to their lowest notch, he is not deceived in regard to your assessment.

He always catches a fellow in some way, and if nothing else is found, the watch chain dangling from the vest pocket gives him an opportunity for dotting down $5 or $10 and rings your name in on the tax list for a city and county poll tax.

"Have you got a dog?" That is the question that rests as a heavy burden upon the tax payer's heart. He wishes he had sold or given the pup away before the assessor had made his rounds. But it is no use to conceal the fact. That assessor knows as well as you do that you have a canine. He may not be worth powder enough to blow him up, but the assessor has had his eye on him long before he entered the house and down goes the dog to add an extra increase to your taxes.

Be kind to the assessor. Paying taxes is one of the great privileges of an American citizen, and if it was not for his persistency in hunting you out, you you would not be doing your patriotic part in bearing the burdens of the city, county and state government. This thought ought to reconcile you to the assessors' call, and make you feel aggrieved if, perchance, he missed you on his rounds.

A Pleasant Wedding.

Yesterday afternoon, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Diedrich Bodenbeck, in Adams township, occurred the marriage of their daughter, Minnie, to Mr. John Zelt, a prominent young farmer of this county. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Stock, of the Lutheran church, in the presence of a large number of the friends and relatives of the contracting parties, after which a pleasant reception was held.

Over three hundred guests were seated at supper and a most delightful evening followed the sumptuous repast. Mr. and Mrs. Zelt dispensed with a wedding tour and will at once commence married life on a farm belonging to the groom situated a few miles from New Haven.

Card of Thanks.

To the Editor of the Sentinel:

To the Knights Templars and the many friends who so generously assisted us in our recent bereavement, we desire to express to them our sincere and heartfelt thanks. In that "dark hour," when the heart seemed crushed, it is indeed a blessing to feel the sympathy of true friends. Respectfully,
Mrs. J. W. Challenger and Family.

Emperor William Never Smoked.

The late emperor of Germany never smoked, which may account for the fact that his digestion was absolutely unimpaired; but whenever any of his officers dined or took supper with him he was wont, when the coffee was brought in, to ask: "Has any one of you gentlemen a cigarette to spare?" and selecting one from the cases eagerly proffered to him, to light it, to draw from it one puff of smoke, and then let it go out as though inadvertently. Knowing full well that nine-tenths of his guests were confirmed smokers, precluded by etiquette from indulging in their favorite habit until the example should be set them by their sovereign, the emperor waived his own strong dislike to the scent of tobacco in order that they might not be balked of any accustomed pleasure at his table.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

The Population of Iowa.

Iowa lies as near as may be at the geographical center of the United States. As might be expected from this situation its population has been drawn from all directions. The census of 1885 shows that of 1,753,980 inhabitants only one-half were born in the state. Of the 500,000 people who have emigrated to Iowa from other states, 20,000 were born in New England, 160,000 in the middle states, 60,000 in the southern states, 240,000 in the other states east of the Mississippi and 20,000 in the western states and territories. Of the 300,000 foreign inhabitants of the state, Germany has sent most, 120,000, followed by Ireland, 42,000, and Norway, 27,000.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Building a Floating Theatre.

A St. Louis man is having a novel craft constructed at a Jeffersonville, Ind., ship yard. It is to be a floating theatre, and will cost about $50,000. The boat is to be built in the shape of a house, with flat bottom, and it is to be finished up with an elegant stage, boxes and all the belongings of a first class theatre. It is the intention of the proprietor to float his theatre all along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, and to give first class dramatic and musical entertainments at the ports in various cities during the summer months, when all the theatres are closed.—New York Post.

An Unworthy Proposition.

The report comes from Washington that the Republican senate will refuse to confirm any nomination of a successor to Chief Justice Waite until the election of next November has been decided. The justification offered for this delay is that it would be "an impropriety to allow an outgoing president, representing a party likely to be dismissed from power, to name the most important judicial head of the government." * * *

The proposed delay is not reprehensible when applied to a vacancy in the chief justiceship of the United States, because it makes a partisan prize of that high judicial office. Legal ability, experience, high character and unsullied reputation ought to command the confirmation of the senate, without regard to politics. It would be the duty of every senator to vote for the rejection of an unfit or a mere political nominee for the head of the supreme court of the United States. But the proposition to hang up such an appointment to abide the result of a political contest is to make it the prize of the victors and to cast it into the mire of partisanship. Will the people be willing to trust a party which thus unblushingly advertises its desire to seize upon the chief justiceship as a political perquisite?—New York World.

Ingalls as a Seer.

Senator Ingalls is now writing alarming letters to his friends for publication, telling them of rebel plots and bloodcurdling Democratic designs discovered by him. But his power as a Titus Oates and his credit as an alarmist were seriously impaired by that boomerang speech he hurled at the country the other day. "The Corcoran Art gallery full of pictures of rebel generals in uniform, with not a single Union commander to keep them company," will not scare the people as much as it seems to have scared him—will not surely convince them, as it seems to have convinced him, that "the southern Confederacy is now an active organized political power as much as it was in 1861." They will simply say this is another one of the spectral horrors conjured up by the diseased mind which the other day saw a soldier of the Confederacy in Gen. McClellan, and an "ally of the Confederacy" in Gen. Hancock.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A Subject for Pity.

We have endeavored to demonstrate to Mr. Ingalls that a United States senator owes something to the country in the way of example. Assuredly the presiding officer of the senate should have more dignity than an ordinary pot house politician. Mr. Ingalls seems to think otherwise. Like the cat which devoured the canary, he is proud of his late exploit. We fear that he is beyond redemption. We feel sorry for the man who exhibits his infirmities and is not sensible of his misfortune.—New York World.

Why, Oh Why?

If Senator Sherman is the one and only Ohio man who can be considered in connection with the Republican nomination for the presidency, why is there such an expenditure of breath, and such a waste of "lamp black and rags," to place that proposition before the people?—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Talk Is Cheap.

It does do the Republicans of Kansas so much good to get together in Topeka and flap the old shirt, that we haven't the heart to remonstrate. Beyond the fleeting pleasure of the moment we are not aware that the flap accomplished anything.—Kansas City Times.

Keifer's Downfall.

Mr. Keifer, of Ohio, can not even get a district appointment to the Republican convention. No fail was ever more complete and emphatic than that of J. Warren Keifer.—Kansas City Times.

If ——.

Senator Ingalls takes back nothing. He would not take back a good name—if he ever had one.—Exchange.

Hancock and McClellan.

Brave heroes, dead, and turned to clay!
Did you e'er dream that, after all these years,
Your very names would serve to kindle into life
A flame almost as fierce as that
Which called you into power!
And that the self same foes,
Who met you face to face,
Would have to lend a voice, to save
Your records from disgrace?

Advice to Mothers.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. She Tried and Knows.

A leading chemist of New York says: "No plaster of such merit as the Ath-lo-pho-ros Plasters has ever before been produced." They are a novelty because they are not made simply to sell cheap, they are the best that science, skill and money can produce, and will do what is claimed for them. For sprains, aches, weakness, lameness, etc., they are unequaled.

"61 Fulton St., Sandusky, O., Nov. 21, '87. The Athlophoros Plaster acted like magic. It is the best I ever tried and I have used many kinds. Our friends said "plasters are all about the same," but I don't think so now. I sprained my arm and shoulder in July, and it hurt from painful since, but it does not pain me at all now. You Carry

A whole medicine chest in your pocket, with one box of Ayer's Pills. As they operate directly on the stomach and bowels, they indirectly affect every other organ of the body. When the stomach is out of order, the head is affected, digestion fails, the blood becomes impoverished, and you fall an easy victim to any prevalent disease. Miss M. E. Boyle, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., puts the whole truth in a nutshell, when she says: "I use no other medicine than Ayer's Pills. They are all that any one needs, and just splendid to save money in doctors' bills."

Here is an instance of

who lost his medicine chest, but, having at hand a bottle of Ayer's Pills, found himself fully equipped.—J. Arrison, M. D., of San José, Cal., writes:

"Some three years ago, by the merest accident, I was forced, so to speak, to prescribe Ayer's Cathartic Pills for several sick men among a party of engineers in the Sierra Nevada mountains, my medicine chest having been lost in crossing a mountain torrent. I was surprised and delighted at the action of the Pills, so much so, indeed, that I was led to a further trial of them, as well as of your Cherry Pectoral and Sarsaparilla. I have nothing but praise to offer in their favor."

John W. Brown, M. D., of Oceana, W. Va., writes: "I prescribe Ayer's Pills in my practice, and find them excellent. I urge their general use in families."

T. E. Hastings, M. D., of Baltimore, Md., writes: "That Ayer's Pills do control and cure the complaints for which they are designed, is as conclusively proven to me as anything possibly can be. They are the best cathartic and aperient within the reach of the profession."

$500 REWARD

is offered by the manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, for a case of Chronic Nasal Catarrh which they cannot cure.

SYMPTOMS OF CATARRH.—Dull, heavy headache, obstruction of the nasal passages, discharges falling from the head into the throat, sometimes profuse, watery, and acrid, at others, thick, tenacious, mucous, purulent, bloody and putrid; the eyes are weak, watery, and inflamed; there is ringing in the ears, deafness, hacking or coughing to clear the throat, expectoration of offensive matter, together with scabs from ulcers; the voice is changed and has a nasal twang; the breath is offensive; smell and taste are impaired; there is a sensation of dizziness, with mental depression, a hacking cough and general debility. Only a few of the above-named symptoms are likely to be present in any one case. Thousands of cases annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, result in consumption, and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive and dangerous, or less understood by physicians.

By its mild, soothing, and healing properties, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures the worst cases of Catarrh, "cold in the head," Coryza, and Catarrhal Headache.

Sold by druggists everywhere, 50 cents.

"Untold Agony from Catarrh."

Prof. W. Hausner, the famous mesmerist, of Ithaca, N. Y., writes: "Some ten years ago I suffered untold agony, from chronic nasal catarrh. My family physician gave me up as incurable, and said I must die. My case was such a bad one, that every day, towards sunset, my voice would become so hoarse I could barely speak above a whisper. In the morning my coughing and sawing of my throat would almost strangle me. By the use of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, in three months, I was a well man, and the cure has been permanent."

"Constantly Hawking and Spitting."

Thomas J. Rushing, Esq., 2203 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I was a great sufferer from catarrh for three years. At times I could hardly breathe, and was constantly hawking and spitting, and for the last eight months could not breathe through the nostrils. I thought nothing could be done for me. Luckily, I was advised to try Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and I am now a well man. I believe it to be the only sure remedy for catarrh now manufactured, and one has only to give it a fair trial to experience astounding results and a permanent cure."

Three Bottles Cure Catarrh.

Eli Rossing, Runyan P. O., Columbia Co., Pa., says: "My daughter had catarrh when she was five years old, very badly. I saw Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy advertised, and procured a bottle for her, and soon after it helped her; a third bottle effected a permanent cure. She is now eighteen years old and sound and hearty."

Curiosities of Superstition.

Louis Napoleon in his will emphasizes the solemn declaration: "With regard to my son, let him keep as a talisman the seal I used to wear attached to my watch." This piece of fetichism would appear to have formed yet another link between the imperial exile that has passed from our midst and those Latin races whose cause he affected to represent, whose superstition he certainly shared. Indeed, the ancient Romans degraded a priest because his miter fell, and unmade a dictator because a rat squeaked. Cæsar crossed the Rubicon because on the opposite bank he saw a man with a fine figure. His nephew felt confident of winning the battle of Actium, because he met a peasant of the name of Nicolaus mounted on an ass. Wolsey was warned of his doom by a crosier-head; Sejanus, by a flight of crows. Dr. Johnson objected to going under a ladder. Montaigne avoided giving his left foot priority in putting on his stockings. Alexander was believed to have untied the Gordian knot with a slice of his sword. For good luck's sake, Augusta wore some portion of a sea-calf; Charlemagne, some trinket of unknown value. Mahommed was all fate. Bonaparte all star and destiny. Cromwell believed in September 3, and Louis Napoleon in December 2. Sylla called himself Felix, the favored child of fortune, and Timoleon turned his house into a temple of Chance. Alexander, if we may credit the account given by Quintus Curtius, was terrified by blood flowing from inside his soldier's bread during the siege of Tyre in 332 B. C. His seer, Aristander, foresaw in this crimson efflux of the vital stream out of the commissariat a happy issue for the Macedonians; and the warriors, thus nerved, took Tyre.

No doubt there was a deal of imposture in alchemy; no doubt, too, the wish for gold was father to the thought of alchemy; but this itself will not account for Henry IV. prohibiting alchemy; for God-fearing Henry VI. eagerly encouraged it; for Pope John XXII. of France making a Franciscan monk his grand almoner, as the reward of a hundred years' reign promised to his credulity by that pretender to the discovery of the grand elixir; or for the Jean De Lisle expiating by an early death in the Bastile his bold attempts to persuade Louis XIV. and his Ministers that he possessed the gold-making stone. Among the wide circle of influential believers that alchemy thus entranced were Roger Bacon, Albertus Magnus, and St. Thomas Aquinas, and even the transcendent intellects of Leibnitz, Spinoza, and Verulam. However, in pursuit of this phantom, Roger Bacon casually stumbled on the composition of gunpowder; Geber, on the properties of acids; Von Helmot on the nature of gas geist or spirit; and Dr. Glauber, of Amsterdam, on the use of salt which bears his name.

Luther and Verulam believed in witches. In his folio dictionary, Johnson defines a witch. "A woman given to unlawful arts." Knighton tells us of persons taxed with keeping devils in the shape of cats. And wise and learned Roman Catholics believe even greater wonders still. For example, Spain, among many images of the Virgin, possesses one at Sarragossa which used to restore lost legs; whilst Austria boasts an image of the Virgin which secures good harvests.—Chamber's Journal.

The Ugly Howling Ape.

There are eight species of apes in Dutch Guiana. The most conspicuous of these is the howling ape, which is also one of the best known and largest of the race. It is called a baboon in the colony, alouatte by the Caribs, and koli by the Arowaks. When standing up it is about three feet high, and weighs about twenty pounds. It lives in both the coast regions and the interior, and eats fruits, leaves, and nuts. Its big, scantily haired belly, the thick, tawny skin of its back, passing into a purple brown at the back of the head and feet; its black face, with strong set of teeth, and the prominence under its neck, covered with a long yellow beard, altogether make it one of the ugliest apes of tropical America. It lives in small troops of rarely more than twelve individuals, among which is always to be found an old, full-grown male, which takes a higher place on the trees than the others, and leads the lugubrious concert by which these apes are so broadly distinguished from other species. The windpipe of the male is much stronger and more complicated, than that of any of the other apes, and is connected with a vocal apparatus composed of bone substance of about the size of a goose-egg, which is set in the hollow of the under jaw. It looks from without like a wen, and acts as a sounding-board to strengthen the voice to an almost incredible extent. The females have a similar apparatus, but only about an inch in size. I do not know what it is that prompts the animal to set up its great cry. It is believed in the colony that it cries out only when the flood-tide begins, but this is wrong, for these apes howl at all times of day, and quite as much in the interior of the country, where there can be no tide. There may be some atmospheric influence which provokes the males to howl, while the females join in with them. There cannot be a sexual impulse in the matter, for that would make old and young howl together. I have had opportunities to hear this howling at great many times, and to observe the howlers from a very close vicinity. Every time there sat an old male up in a tree, supporting himself on his fore feet, and having his long tail, naked of hair on the inside for about nine inches from the end, black and smooth as a band, wrapped around a limb, while other males, females, and young, sat beneath him in a variety of positions. All at once the old fellow would set up a horrible rattling, "Roohu, roohu," which, after five or six repetitions, passed into a bellowing in which all the others would join, and which was loud enough to make one afraid of losing his hearing.—Popular Science Monthly.

In the Carpathians.

Sunday is a very entertaining day at Sinaia. All the peasants come from round about, with carpets, costumes, and towels, fruits of their industry during the long winter. They station themselves in the gardens, opposite the most central hotel, and there expose their goods over the balconies and benches to tempt the visitors. On a saint's day peasants come from very long distances with their goods packed on mules, and hold quite a fair. Roumanian carpets are of a rougher texture than most oriental work, hardly bigger than large rugs, and of every shade. The costumes are often most beautifully worked in different colors and ornamented with gold and silver spangles. They find a great sale at Sinaia, as the national costume is popular among the Roumanian ladies. They think little of paying many hundred francs for one costume. The chief beauty of this dress is its extreme simplicity, but the effect is very picturesque, as it suits the dark eyes and coloring of the Roumanians. They say it dates back to the Roman days. Of course ladies wear very elaborate editions beautifully worked; so do the richer peasants on gala occasions. The ordinary national dress of a Roumanian peasant woman consists of a coarse white linen shirt, embroidered on the breast, neck, shoulders, and wrists in blue, black, or red wool. A petticoat reaching to the ankles, also embroidered round the bottom, is of the same white linen, and over this an apron, or catrino, of course, strong stuff, dark blue or black, generally bordered with a red or yellow stripe; the whole is confined round the waist by a broad band of different colors. In winter they wear an overcoat or sleeveless skin waistcoat beautifully worked in wools. During the warm weather they generally go barefoot. An unmarried girl either leaves her head uncovered or ties on a handkerchief, while married women wear long veils. It is a very simple dress, which seems to suit their primitive sort of life, for the peasant woman weaves all the linen and cloth used by the family. In the Carpathians the women are, as a rule, fine and handsome, with a natural free, noble bearing and gait. They seem very strong and do not mind hard work. I have seen them divide with men the labor of making roads and building houses. The men's dress consists of a coarse white linen shirt, like a tunic, worn outside the pantaloons, and fastened round the waist with a strong, broad leather belt. The rather full pantaloons are confined from the knee by the thongs of the sandals, or, as the Roumanians call them, opinci—soles made of goat-skin, cut the size of the foot, and bound on by crossed bands. The mountaineers wear picturesque large hats or sheep-skin caps, (caciolas). The addition in winter is the sleeveless embroidered waistcoat, or an enormous sheep-skin jacket, doubtless very warm, but which has often seen too many generations to recommend it to fastidious tastes.—Catholic World.

Another Story of Lincoln.

As too much cannot be said about Mr. Lincoln I am induced to send you the following account of an interview which the writer had with him:

I called upon him to ask for a position in the service for my son. Alas! I received it; my boy went to the war and never returned. I was accompanied by a lady companion, a Southern woman, and we had with us a little boy, a grandson of Lord Fairfax. After a pleasant interview my friend said: "Will you give me your autograph for a friend in England?" I, however, had hesitated to ask him, although wanting one very much. He went to his desk and wrote, "Yours truly, A. Lincoln," but instead of giving it to my friend, who had asked him for it, he handed it to me, and I still have it among my treasures. He then wrote simply "A. Lincoln." Handing it to my friend he remarked aside to me: "That is good enough for England."

I then said: "Mr. President, I have brought a grandson of Lord Fairfax to see you." He was a beautiful boy, and Mr. Lincoln, who was always fond of children, extended his hand to him, saying, "He bids fair to be a handsomer man than I am. Well, my little man, you are for the Union!" The boy looked up into Mr. Lincoln's face and replied: "Somewhat!" Both I and my friend were horrified, she, a Southern woman, fearing we would be arrested, and I, that I would fail in getting my boy's appointment, but Mr. Lincoln only laughed, and said: "I guess there are a good many somewhats!"

Just as we were about to withdraw, wishing to express my thanks for his courtesy, I said: "Oh! Mr. Lincoln, you do not know how much I shall prize your autograph, and if you only get us out of this war it will be ever very precious." I shall never forget his earnest, careworn, and yet hopeful expression of countenance as he replied: "You pray for me, and I will do the best I can."

After getting into our carriage I said to the boy, who was only about 7 years of age. "Why did you say you were somewhat for the Union?" He replied: "Why, mamma is always crying and praying for the South, and papa is serving Uncle Sam, and I cannot help being somewhat."—Cor. Philadelphia Press.

Three Stories.

Ruth and Olive, two irresistible girls of the rosy, busy, breezy sort, that delight the kindergartner's heart, got up yesterday morning in the freezing cold and scampered as usual into the nursery. They came down stairs a little late, excited over the cold weather; they seemed to have forgotten that there was any such thing.

"Why, mamma," said Olive, "we got up this morning and ran into the nursery, and it was so cold there that we thought we'd freeze, and then we found that big afghan, and we took it and wrapped ourselves both up in it, and we thanked God!"

Two jolly stories of a child contributed to the Listener:

There is a little 4-year-old niece of mine who was almost a babe in arms when we were living side by side on the Swampscott Highlands. She had been prepared for bed one night and was asked to say her prayers, when she replied:

"I shan't say them any more; God knows them well enough by this time."

"And afterward, when her mother was about to turn off the gas and leave the room, the child said:

"I don't want to be left all alone in the dark.'

"'You won't be left alone, dear; God will be with you,' said the mother.

"Well, I don't care for Him. I'd rather have one of my own family.'"—Boston Transcript.

The Origin of Petroleum.

Prof. Medeleef in Engineering has advanced the theory that petroleum is of mineral origin, and that its production is going on, and may continue almost indefinitely. He has succeeded in making it artificially by a similar process to that which he believes is going on in the earth, and experts find it impossible to distinguish between the natural and the manufactured article.

His hypothesis is that water finds its way below the crust of the earth, and then meets with carbides of metals, particularly of iron in a growing state.

The water is decomposed into its constituent gases; the oxygen unites with the iron, while the hydrogen takes up the carbon, and ascends to a higher region, where part of it is condensed into mineral oil, and part remains as natural gas, to escape where it can find an outlet, or to remain stored at great pressure until a borehole is put down to provide it a passage to the surface.

Oil-bearing strata occurs in the vicinity of mountain ranges, and it is supposed that the upheavel of the hills has dislocated the strata below sufficiently to give the water access to depths from which it is ordinarily shut out. If the center of the earth contains large amounts of metallic carbides, we have in prospect a store of fuel against the days when our coal will be exhausted.

A Great Battle

Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. A good reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive the desperate enemy from the field, and restore peace and bodily health for many years. Try this peculiar medicine.

The Grand Rapids and Indiana had a costly accident in Michigan last Thursday, but with its usual luck, no one was killed. As passenger train No. 29 was leaving Luther it was derailed and thrown into the Little Manistee river. The accident occurring near the approach to the bridge, a terrific wreck was the result, the stream being filled with debris. James Bessie, the engineer, was thrown into the water, and a tool chest fell upon him, injuring him severely. Dick Bird, the fireman, escaped with only a few scratches by leaping into the water. Had the train been running at full speed many lives would have been lost, and as it is, it is almost a miracle that every one in the train escaped.

These invitations are issued: "Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dougal Gorham request the pleasure of your company at the marriage of their daughter, Grace Dougal, to Mr. Stephen Darrow Bond, on Wednesday, April 25, at 8 o'clock, at 140 Kinnard street, Cleveland, Ohio."

Out at the east Pittsburg yards this morning, the trainmen found Al. Meyers, an east end brakeman, badly used up. His hands looked like chop feed and his general appearance would lead to the impression that he went through the revolutions of a threshing machine. Dr. Stemen was called, but found that the man had been drinking and possibly attempted to stop a train.

The gospel meetings now in progress at the Christian church, corner Jefferson and Griffith streets, opened last evening with a fine audience and special enthusiasm. Henry Rehling, the foreman of the Wabash boiler shops, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his birth yesterday.

The railroads are placing their road beds in a first class condition. This is always a part of the early summer's work.

Seymour Boyd, whose pleasant face has been missed from the office at the Bass works for several days on account of sickness, has returned to his duties.

The inspection party made a tour of the Pittsburg shops yesterday and the boys saw the new superintendent of the road, Mr. E. B. Taylor, for the first time.

Henry Stouder, of the Nickel Plate, has received $15 on an accident insurance. Some time ago the young man fell into a cattle guard, injuring his shoulders.

Captain Thomas Toomey, one of the oldest employes of the Bass works, is detained from duty on account of the serious illness of his daughter. The captain is devoted to his family.

The Pennsylvania company is trying to lease or purchase the C., R. and C. road, owned by the C., R. and D. It extends from Richmond, Ind., to Hamilton, O. If the Pennsylvania company succeeds in coming to satisfactory terms with the owners of the C., R. and C. road it will give them a line of their own to Chicago.

This morning was a lovely one for the hunting of news. It had to be hunted, however, for it was very scarce. No wrecks, no accidents, no elopements, no suicides, no sensations, in fact nothing of interest presented itself to a hungry reporter to catch onto, and as a consequence he voted the day as one of the very many dull ones that are coming altogether too frequently for a newspaper man.

The night watchman at the Bass works makes his rounds throughout every department of that establishment each hour during the night. It is his duty to try each door to see that it is securely locked on his hourly trips and a system of electric wires, communicating with the main office, is so arranged that it can be seen in the morning whether he has performed his duty or not. Pat Carl is the watchman and the board at the main office always shows a clean record in the morning.

GASOLINE EXPLODES.

A Young Lady is Severely Burned This Morning.

At the residence of Mr. George H. Loesch, on West Washington street, this morning, the awful fate of Miss Evard, in Milan township, nearly befell Miss Annie Goebfert.

The young woman arranged the gasoline stove and started a brisk blaze to prepare breakfast for the family.

She went up stairs for a moment and returning found the stove enveloped in flames, reinforced by the dripping oil from the can-holder, which sprang a leak.

With rare heroism the girl sought to smother the fire, but the oil fell upon her and in an instant her garments were ablaze. Her hair was singed off, her face was blistered and her arms and hands badly burned, as the sleeve coverings were first to fall in ashes.

The flames communicated to the woodwork of the kitchen. The fire had much headway when the department responded and smothered the elements.

Miss Goebfert is severely burned, but will recover.

QUITE IMPORTANT.

The Meeting of the Democratic City Central Committee To-night.

This evening, at 7:30, occurs the meeting of the city central committee, at the council chamber, on Barr street.

Too much importance cannot be attached to this meeting, for since the city voted conventions out of order, it is the only body to give expression to the views of the party and the only tribunal through which announcements of future policy and purposes can be made.

The committee besides must name a date for the nomination of three water works trustees by popular vote and see to the nomination of democratic councilmanic candidates in the different wards.

All democrats are invited to the meeting and all have a voice in the deliberations, through the wisdom and courtesy of its chairman.
